

Suffering from some form of Erectile Function? You have more options than ever before.

First off, let's start by clearing the air – not being able to get an erection should not be a taboo topic! If you are not discussing it and you're battling with poor sexual performance, you should be! It should be talked about openly and freely, not only between patient and provider but amongst couples.

Not discussing your concern for your erectile function with your partner can cause tension and unnecessary stress in your relationship. It is easy to get caught up in your own emotions and not have difficult conversations with your partner; they too are struggling with emotions, including feeling like it is their fault, a lack of attraction and desire, frustration, and a loss of passion.

Intimacy and desire are important cornerstones of a relationship, and without them, the conversations you're not having could be even more detrimental to your relationship.

Our goal is to educate you about erectile function and dysfunction, the causes, and the many erectile function treatment options that are available to you at Limitless Male.

If you suffer from any of the following symptoms, you may be a candidate for the treatment:

- Loss of libido and desire for sex
- Inability to achieve an erection
- Unable to maintain an erection long enough to complete intercourse
- Inability to ejaculate
- Emotional issues such as embarrassment, shame, anxiety, and a reduced interest in sex
- Decreased sensation and pleasure
- Inability to achieve or maintain firmness during/for intercourse
- Lack of desire or avoidance of intercourse/intimate moments

Our clinics offer comprehensive erectile function treatment options for you.
